

GLADES FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

News From Your TOWN HALL

Better look over that published Delinquent tax list, and see if your property is included, due to your own neglect.

City Commissioners getting ready to formulate annual city budget for the coming fiscal year. Let there be no mistake in making the estimates too low, for Belle Glade citizens, want improvements, even tho it costs them extra money.

"Dutch" Wallis, city clerk, can now have more room for a private consultation and work office, since the police department has moved to its new quarters, he having taken over the former police quarters.

Seems queer to go into the Monday and Friday police court, and find only a mere handful of offenders, where in the season there were hundreds of them.

If you think Belle Glade does not need sewer service to draw off surface water, just take a review of flooded streets of the city, after the near like six inches of rain fall the past week.

Drainage District Had Plenty Of Water Fall In May

Officials of the Everglades Drainage District have issued a survey of rain for the month of May. They say plentiful rain fall brought an end to a near drought in some of the city, after the near like six inches of rain fall the past week.

Rainfall was efficient to recharge ground water to ground surface in most places. Canal stages were generally higher than April 30th. Rain over flow on the lower stretches of the Hillsboro canal was permitted to run for the filling purposes. The stages at the lake was kept near 14 feet in anticipation of either heavy rain or further sub-normal rainfall. Rain falls at the various station ranged from 5.12 inches at Fort Mayers to 11.32 at Shawano plantation, the record at the Experiment station was 6.32 inches.

County Budget Increased

The County Board of Commissioners state that the proposed budget for 1946-7, will show an increase of $760,630 over last year, which will mean a likely additional tax of 2.93 mills, or a total millage of 8.41. The increase is largely due to hospital and jail financing.

Agricultural Board Starts Vast Experimental Program

Looking To The Better Growing, Marketing, Packaging and Canning of Florida Vegetables

The State Board of Control has passed favorably upon a plan for specialized research work in the methods of specializing in growing, handling, marketing, producing goods, with a view of placing better quality of goods to the purchasers.

This plan will be to develop a system while more economical methods of marketing the produce locally was contemplated.

What ever the results may be, but will not doubt effect the Glades area, where so much of the prime winter vegetable production is located.

Consider Purchase Of Road Machine For Street Work

The City Commissioners are aware that there is much street repairs urgently needed in the city, but with present equipment available, and the high cost of the improvements, and little money to carry on the work, they are wondering how improvements can be produced.

To remedy one of these inefficiencies, plans are being considered for the purchase of an over-all road machine, which can be used in many classes of work, Pabokee and Cleveland have similar equipment, and some of them before a local purchase is made.

Disaffection was expressed by the inspectors and the city data over some of the sanitary work done in connection with the new city jail, which was early held up for the same, until further investigation was completed. The new cess pool was the main objection which arose in this discussion.

New Packing House

The American Fruit Grower's Association, which erected a sizeable and modern packing house over in the Terminal last year, has made application and been given a permit to erect an addition to this plant 100 feet, which will cost $20,000. Work on this new structure will be carried on during the summer months.

Additional building permits issued: C. E. Lutz, a $3,000 addition to First street, S. V. John Singleton, dwelling, $1,000. Raymond Ross, dwelling, $600.

Attended Family Reunion

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Barbee, and family, spent the Fourth of July weekend, visiting the family home in Bonifay in north Florida. The parents had five sons and four daughters and sixteen grandchildren.

While in that section Mr. Barbee made a search for building materials and found that there was an abundance of pine timber on the market, at a price of about $25.00 per cord. It was estimated that the timber in the Glades area, and as much as $25.00 the thousand feet. Bonifay is in the corner of the county, and there is no such crop, owing to weather conditions.

Cherry In Football Work

Joe Cherry, Jr., who is taking husbandry studies at Auburn, Ga., writes that he is enjoying his student work. He is also taking the process of ball practice with the college squads, and is getting plenty of work of a stiff and rugged nature.

Heavy Rainfalls Recorded

Most every body knows that there has been plenty of rain in the Glades area, and in many places, but not how much in measured inches. Inquiries at the Superintendents Station, South of the city, showed that there was an abundance of pine timber on the market, at a price of about $25.00 per cord. It was estimated that the timber in the Glades area, and as much as $25.00 the thousand feet. Bonifay is in the corner of the county, and there is no such crop, owing to weather conditions.

Woman 105 Years Old Placed In Hospital For Final Care

Chief of Police Payne, of South Beach, notified of duties alone to police work, was known by his big pipe, has come to the end of his active career, due to infirmities of old age and illness. "Watt" has been removed to the Pabokee hospital by action of county officials. He had become helpless, and had no means of subsistence, and his predicament became known to his neighbors, action was taken leading up to the above mentioned humanitarian act.

Old Indifference Still With Us

Public health and safety generally receive some kind of consideration by federal, state and municipal governments, but the current high auto-accident death toll and laxity among health authorities all along the line, call for renewed and determined action throughout the land to make this a safer nation in which to live.

President Truman recently stressed a general laxity in the states in moving against recklessness on the roads and the press of the nation has been emphasizing the mounting accident death rate, but little has been done recently in many states and communities to wipe out widespread threats to public health.

Two or three large cities recently focused attention on the laxity of health authorities in dealing with the rat and insect menaces to health, while others are currently too busy with the housing shortage and budget problems to concentrate now on health and public safety campaigns, even though both call for constant and concentrated action.

Health authorities in most communities, particularly in the larger cities have been indifferent in recent years to a most offensive practice—the exposure of foods on store and restaurant counters. Pastry, bread and other edibles are frequently left uncovered on counters, sometimes directly under the noses of customers who come and go throughout the day.

Most cities, boasting of health-consciousness, have enacted laws against this practice while others still haven't got around to putting anything on the books to discourage it. And in cities where the health authorities are lax in enforcement.

Where the practice is common, restaurant and store owners have demonstrated a defiance of common cleanliness in offering their wares, often after an all-day exposure to whatever germs are restlessly transiet, and the less fussy customers continue their patronage of such establishments as indifferent to the germs as the proprietor is to concern for their health.

Health authorities in such cities imply by their lack of action against such practices, that they are unimportant in the face of other problems. The fact is that since this practice is so widespread in the nation, it sums up as one of our most serious health problems, and it should be stopped by federal action if necessary.

States Right Boxy

How reverting nationalism and self-interest have a counter-part within the United States has been demonstrated in a return of regional interest in the veterans' education problem to the point of setting up restrictive barriers.

In other words, instead of one, the nation has 48 veterans' administrations, and they are all at war to an extent which has made individual sovereignty more important than the future of the validity of education. The promise that a veteran could go where and as he chose to get the sort of education he desired has not only been denied but back-fired in a way which has made state lines greater points of distinction than ever before.

As expressed by Dean Ernest C. Marriner, of Colby College, recently: "The veteran is almost as criminal if he crosses state lines. Each state is expected to care for its own."

The Colby educator correctly termed this situation a reactive and dangerous "Provincialism." In his words, it makes New York a "foreign land." In his words, it makes Maine, for instance, and if not corrected through some realignment among the states will have permanent and damaging effects upon that sort of educational outlook which seeks unity of vision in "one world."

"Roses In A Newspaper Office"

Life in a newspaper office is mostly just having a good time, telling stories, cracking jokes, trading newspapers and meeting new people. There are a few little things that aren't completely joy and comfort.

The press gets paper on the ink rollers, and the ink holds like glue and the paper has to be dug off.

Then the folder acts up; for some mysterious reason it gives the paper a twist, like a naughty fan dancer, and throws the fold off.

Then maybe the paper curls up and is hard to feed through the press.

And about this time someone calls up and complains about not getting his paper. Ditto, ditto, etc.

Then someone from Pahokee or South Bay or Clewiston calls up and wants to know why they don't get their paper till Saturday or Monday.

Someone else calls up and wants to know why a party wasn't in the paper. We hunt through the paper for 15 minutes and find that it was on the front page and telephone bank.

Then with nearly six columns to fill on the front page we look around for some news and see nothing but blank space. Finally some guy spills a good item but says, "My gosh, don't put that in the paper," and we have to delete the stuff out of journalism or make an enemy.

About this time the linotype machine squirts and it takes half an hour to clean it out.

Someone comes in with a rush order of job printing and we take time out to do it, and then they don't call for it for two weeks.

Someone sends in some items and it takes a detective, a calligrapher is, but that's what it takes and an autologer to figure out what the items mean.

Just before press time we find we need about half a column to fill a page.

We get the forms on the press and find one column was filled by a party's correction.

Then we start the press and

"G. I. Joe"

Theresa Meredith enacts the role of this "little trouper," and he does a grand job of it. Featured players assisting him are Robert Mitchum as the Captain, Freddie Steele, as the Sergeant and Wally Cassell as the Private.

Never will you remember having seen such a heart tugging, love story as this one, "G. I. Joe," which will live in your memory a long time.

Tuesday-Wednesday the sequel to "See Him, Private Hargrove," will be screened under the title "What Next Corporal Hargrove?" Robert Walker, Kenneth Wynn, Jean Porter, Chell Wills, Cameron Mitchell and Arthur Walsh do this show and they do a grand job un-reeling the story of the boys in France, spending their time trying to hoodwink the populace, and to get themselves sent to Paris. Romantic complications develop between Hargrove and a French girl, but these are circumvented by his companions.

The Western picture for this day is Alan Lane and lovely Peggy Stewart in "Stage Coach to Monterey," which is an action-adventure that will please all members of the Six Shooters Club.

See you at the movies—Mal.

It's a riot!

Thursday-Friday brings Joan Leslie and Robert Hutton, assisted by a fine cast of featured players listing Harry Davenport, Dolores Moran and Rosemary DeCamp as chief assistants, unreeling "Too Young to Know." This is the howling story of a whirlwind courtship, their romantic elopement and their after-the-honeymoon adventure. You'll love it!

Saturday brings a double featured program, headed by "The Voice of the Whistler" and starring Richard Dix and Lynn Merrick in another mystery story in this highly interesting series.

Funeral Services Held For Mrs. Bender

Mrs. Thelma "Honey" Bender, 28, passed away Monday at Johns Hopkins Hospital after several weeks illness. Having been born in Fort Lauderdale, Mrs. Bender came to Belle Glade eleven and one-half years ago. She was a member of the First Baptist Church, Woman's Club and the Country Club of the Everglades.

Survivors include her husband George J., mother, Mrs. Geo. Schmitt, of Ft. Lauderdale, father, Amos Cheshire of Texas, two sisters, Mrs. John Carle of Hollywood, Calif., Miss Caroline Cheshire of New York City and a brother, Orville Cheshire of Fort Lauderdale.

Funeral services were held at the Baptist Church here Thursday afternoon with the Rev. L. E. Enlow officiating. Pallbearers included A. E. Kirshman, C. M. Green, Harold McKee, H. C. VanLandingham, J. W. Moseley, and F. C. Dooley. Homage payers were C. E. Fording, H. R. Hitecheek, and E. R. Butler, L. W. Jones, A. A. Kirshman, W. W. Weeks, R. R. Taylor, Harrison Raul, and Harold Rabin. "Honey" as she was known to a wide circle of friends, was laid to rest at the Evergreen Cemetery in Fort Lauderdale. Local business houses were closed during the funeral hour.

CONSIDERS PURCHASING

Continued from page one all the mains for the water distributing system were now in the trenches, had been tested and found satisfactory, and that other work at the plant was nearing a completion stage. Commission informed First Chief L. E. Will, that while it was interested in the purchase of a new fire truck, it did not desire to act on same until there was a full commission present. This will be one of the order of business at the next session of the body. Merchants between Second and Fourth street informed the Commission, that they desired the city to extend its street cleaning services along Avenue A, within that section, as well as make some street repairs so that cypress and ingress to cars could be made in rain periods. Same was taken under consideration with a likely favorable action. One of the defendants in the proposed Denton garage condemnation action, appeared before the body, and outlined construction work in view. Commission directed that the necessary plans and application to be presented for approval before work be started.

Building permits granted were: B. T. Webster, wash house, $250; Lee Puckett, wash house, $200; F and S Properties, residence, $800; L. Shuler, dwelling, $3,000.

Leases Storage Space

The Glades Construction Company has leased warehouse room for storage of finished lumber, from the Belle Glade Lumber company, on South Main street.

Mostly An Absent Meeting

The president, the two vice-presidents, the four immediate past presidents of the Lion's club were all absent from the Wednesday meeting, so Past President Lee Puckett was present in service. The program chairman and the speaker of the day were missing, the program was uninitiated and a lot of members, were not present, so there was lots of food left on the tables unadorned. A round table discussion about health and hospital matters were discussed.

Friends Of Groom Gave Him A Razzing Experience

As an aftermath of a Wednesday afternoon wedding event, was experienced by the groom, B. Q. Waddell, Jr., one temporary mayor of Belle Glade, when a company of his friends (7) took him on previous trip, one which he or the tormentors alike will never forget.

Rigged out so that he looked like a scare crow, covered with mud and filth, in his blindfolded condition, he was led through many a location and situation, and finally landed at the city bustle, where he was charged with having had "Premeditated Matrimonial Intent of an Insane Nature."

His group of friends, brought the new bride down to inspect the man she had only a few hours before had married. Fun games prevailed for an hour and then the victim, who took all the razzing in a wonderful good natured way, was released into the arms of the anxiously waiting wife.

Miami Wants To Entertain Legion Convention 1947

The American Legion has a bill in the U. S. Senate which provides for the establishing of World War II Armistice Day on August 14th of each year. That was the date that war hostilities ended for this war. While it may not be enacted into law in time for this year's general celebration, it is most likely to meet final Congressional approval. Many Posts are planning for such observances this year.

Miami entertained the National Convention of the Legion in 1935, and what a convention it was, too! Now, that city will ask the San Francisco convention to let it again entertain in 1947, promising 20,000 hotel room accommodations.

The National Legion Council has decided upon the names of four national and world wide known men to receive the Distinguished Service awards at the San Francisco convention in September. The men selected for such honors are: Former Secretary of State, Cordell Hull; J. Edgar Hoover, of the FBI; Major General Lewis B. Howe, and Bob Hope. Since 1921, when the Legion first established this honor award system, 26 men have been given the honors.

F. D. Yarn, serving for many years as Farm Agent for Glades county, has announced that he has purchased all the interests of R. E. Kirtz and Son, of Ft. Myers in Glades county. Mr. Yarn is also retiring as county agent as of August 15th.

Ordinary non-GI just as soon as the former soldiers are given a chance to build.

The growing cattle fattening industry of the Glades is growing and pausing in its efforts to expand, and outside capital is making most generous offers for the establishment of dairy herds and cattle food plants for the area.

Ramie growing as an industry lets out a healthy squall quite frequently now, and a few months should fairly well demonstrate just how healthy this as a diversified crop for Glades farmers will become. The fatal sicknesses of infancy have not been all passed in the Ramie business as yet, but there are many in the Glades who see it as another substantial crop on the modest and black-and-white of glades activities.

If our good neighbor policy allows Floridians and Louisianians the privilege of an industrial part of the sugar production now going to the Philippines Cuba and other of shore areas, then the sugar industry in the Glades is destined for a 100 per cent increase.

Altogether this first year after war end has left the Glades as a whole nothing about which to cry.
